SALVATION ARMY FUND APPEAL

Toronto, April 28th.—"Because the Canadian government has ruled that there can be no united campaign by the National War Services organizations this year, and, further, seeing the government has decided to finance from the federal treasury only the wartime work of these organizations; therefore, The Salvation Army will find it necessary to appeal to the public for funds next Fall in order to carry on its regular home service programme." Commissioner Benjamin Granie announced here today.

"This simply means we practically revert to the policy and practice which existed prior to 1941, when at the request of the government, The Salvation Army joined with the other war service organizations in one united campaign in raising both war and home service requirements, which was held in March, 1941," the Commissioner explained.

"In these critical times, The Salvation Army will continue to fit in and co-operate with the Dominion authorities to the fullest possible extent; hence, in accordance with the government's ruling, we cannot raise 1942 funds by a national campaign as we had done up to 1941. Instead, we intend to conduct local appeals next Fall in all those communities in Canada where our work has been carried on for many years, and hope that our kind friends and supporters will give the same assistance and co-operation that they have in the past. We know they are all just as anxious to see our work continue as we are," the Commissioner concluded.

CRESCENT GREATER CARNIVAL SHOWS COMING TO BLAIRMORE

Crescent Greater Carnival Shows will camp in Blairmore for three days, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 11, 12 and 13, across the river. Peanuts, popcorn, hot dogs, all the fun of the fair. Yes, it's really true, the Crescent Shows will exhibit here. The big show features a thrilling new ride, the tilt-a-wheel, as well as a ferris wheel, merry-go-round, loop-o-loops and a kiddie auto ride; besides new games, shows and concessions. This will positively be the only travelling organization to play at Blairmore this season. A big thrill for everyone, so take the kiddies and enjoy it.

Blairmore's plebiscite vote was 647 yes and 212 no.

The Blairmore war salvage committee are all lined up now for the campaign. A pound has been erected near the C.P.R. loading depot, where citizens may deposit their scrap paper, rubber, metal, rags, etc. It is hoped to lead two box cars there during next week.

"V" CARD OF THANKS

The Secretary and Executive of the Crows' Nest Pass Musical Festival wish to heartily thank all those who attended at the door and box office, those who for all the nine sessions assisted the secretary, and in any way contributed to the success of the Festival.

RED CROSS DRIVE FOR NECESSARY FUNDS

Next in line of all the successful campaigns for funds carried on in recent months is the Red Cross Society drive to raise $9,000,000 or more between May 11th and 23rd. Judging by all past efforts, it should be an easy matter, and it will be. Blairmore has been asked for $2,500, and they'll get it and probably more.

There has been no Red Cross campaign since October of 1940, when some five million was raised. It is now necessary that those who contributed in 1940 should at least double their contributions if the great sum now needed is to be raised.

It costs more than $5,000,000 a year alone to supply parcels of food and other necessities to prisoners of war, as requested by the Canadian, British, Australian and New Zealand governments. It is through the Canadian Red Cross Society that any Canadian can render any aid to any Canadian, British, Australian or New Zealand prisoners of war anywhere. The Society is the only medium through which information regarding missing men can be obtained for next of kin and other anxious relatives.

The Society's blood donor service, supplying blood serum for overseas need, affords the only way in which Canadians who cannot go overseas may make good to fighting men some of the blood "they" shed.

The Society has to be prepared to meet any war emergency that may come to Canada, at or from either coast; and the Society serves the troops overseas, in Britain and elsewhere—the wounded, sick, bombed-out civilians and suffering humanity anywhere its establishments operate. All of these services are entirely free and voluntary, but Canadians must furnish the funds that make them possible.

B.C. fish say they will be ready for the all-out war on May 15th.

Soviet war news reported recently that 3,000 persons were put to death when Bulgarian troops and German bombers quelled an uprising which broke out in fifteen villages around Drama, Bulgaria. That's part of Hitler's new regime.

Congratulations are in order for James Cousens, of Bellevue, recently installed as grand master of the Independent Order of Oddfellows of Alberta. Jim has always been an enthusiastic worker for the order, and his present office is highly favored.

R.C.A.F. HERCES DECORATED BY KING

Four courageous Canadians received decorations from the hands of His Majesty the King at an investiture at Buckingham Palace. Pilot Officer Larry Robillard, of Ottawa, (left) was decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross. He has a score of four aircraft destroyed and one "probable." The Distinguished Flying Cross was presented to Flight Sergeant B. C. Paige, of Bridgeport, Ontario, (second) after he safely navigated a Hudson bomber and its crew to its base. The aircraft flew so low in an attack on enemy shipping that one wing-tipped a projecting rock, disabling the starboard engine, rendering all instruments and turret unserviceable and extinguishing the lights. To Wing Commander Thomas C. Weir, of Toronto and Winnipeg, (third) went the Distinguished Flying Cross

Heavy Expense To Keep Price Ceiling in Place

Ottawa.—Government subsidies to keep the price ceiling in place and protect the farmer from higher prices for essential commodities have amounted to $2,128,961 in five months, Finance Minister Halsey told the House of Commons.

There is no reason to believe they will ever reach the "fantastic" totals of several hundred million dollars "suggested in some quarters," the minister said.

In the war appropriation resolution he had included an item of $50,000,000 to cover subsidies but attempts to estimate the ultimate annual total "are likely to be unprofitable" because the deciding circumstances could not be forecast.

Mr. Halsey's statement was made in reply to repeated questions regarding subsidy payments. He gave the decision that, for the present at least, he will not release the names of the organizations receiving the subsidies.

The statement was made during consideration in committee of the Halsey war appropriation bill and at its conclusion, the committee resumed discussion on the army division of the defence department.

Leaders of the opposition parties agreed discussion of the price-ceiling subsidies would be reserved until members had an opportunity to study the minister's statement, but there was brief comment by Joseph Harris (Con., Toronto-Danforth). He agreed that the price ceiling was necessary but said it was driving business to "lean on the government."

Mr. Harris said he saw the possibility of price-ceiling operations embarrassing Canada's economy through certain people taking production of the market because they stood to "lose a few shekels." He mentioned the recent shortage of beef.

John Blackmore, New Democracy leader, said his group supported the minister in his efforts to maintain prices at a proper level, and "believe he has done a fine job."

But his "one gentle criticism" was that too little attention was paid to the production element, which in some cases was not receiving enough to pay costs let alone a living for the producers. This had caused the difficult beef situation and might bring the same trouble in regard to other commodities, he said.

Mr. Halsey said subsidies paid by the commodity prices stabilization corporation, operated in conjunction with the wartime prices and trade board, already have assisted in sheltering the Canadian consumer from the effect of spreading war and greater cost in obtaining imported essentials.

The subsidies are paid by the corporation after approval by the board which is in charge of the price-ceiling regulations.

The minister tabled a detailed list showing the largest single subsidy output to April 21 was $1,387,680 for payments to encourage milk production.

RANGER UNITS

New Force Composed Of Miners, Hanchers And Lumber Workers
Cranbrook, B.C.—Pacific coast ranger units composed of miners, ranchers, lumber workers and business men have been set up at Yalak, 40 miles south of here, and Kingsgate, 10 miles farther south on the international border.

Included among the men who turned out for the organizational meeting at Yalak were former officers of the Royal Flying Corps, the Swedish navy, former members of the Canadian army and navy, a First World War veteran of the French army and a former private in the Royal Scots.

W. R. Baskerville was chosen at the meeting to be recommended to the Pacific command as officer in charge of the unit.

EASY TO USE

New Fire Extinguisher Is Also Very Powerful Says Inventor

Hallfax.—A fire extinguisher which he said can be operated by a child but so powerful it will douse an incendiary bomb in 60 seconds is the invention of J. Daniel Pride, former naval engineer for the British admiralty and now employed by the Nova Scotia Light and Power Co. here.

Patents for the invention are pending at Ottawa and Washington, Pride said, adding that he hoped production of the extinguisher would begin immediately.

GRATEFUL TO CANADA

New Zealand Commission Refers To Sending Of War Supplies

Washington.—New Zealand is grateful to Canada for war supplies and hopes the flow will increase, Frank Langstone, newly-appointed New Zealand high commissioner to Canada, said.

He has been in Washington several months as a special representative of the New Zealand government and hopes to leave shortly for Ottawa to take up his new job. He will be New Zealand's first high commissioner to Canada.

In a press statement, Langstone said: "As the war situation in the Pacific becomes more intensified and widespread, the mutual interest of Canada and New Zealand must inevitably become closer and our own representations in Ottawa as in Washington, become a matter of urgent necessity and will prove of unquestionable value to New Zealand and must strengthen at this most critical period the means of inter-cooperation between the two dominions."

He said trade relations between Canada and New Zealand always have been on a high plane and today the important part which Canada is playing in producing essential war equipment cannot be overestimated and New Zealand's efficient war effort largely depends upon obtaining these essentials from overseas.

A New Plan For Problem Of India Is Still Possible

London.—Sir Stafford Cripps expressed the belief that there still is some possibility of a new plan for settling India's problems could be devised before the end of the war, but said any such proposal "would have to come from India."

Summing up the results of his recent conversations in New Delhi and the present outlook, Sir Stafford told a press conference "it is an encouraging picture—not as encouraging as it might have been, but certainly more encouraging than it would have been if nothing whatever had been done."

He disclosed that before leaving New Delhi he discussed with Indian leaders the possibility that they devise a new plan for participation in wartime government as an alternative to the post-war dominion proposals which they rejected.

He stressed again, however, that changes in the Indian constitution requiring "months or years" would be necessary to make possible the form of national government the All India Congress party leaders sought.

He said Louis Johnson was "of the greatest assistance" in the negotiations, but emphasized that the United States envoy acted purely as a "personal intermediary" for Sir Stafford in attempting a solution of the Indian problem.

Mr. Johnson "never in any sense acted in an official capacity at all," Sir Stafford said. "It was purely personal and of great value."

He added that there was no suggestion of an attempt to intervene between Britain and India by Chiang Kai-shek.

The Chinese leader, Sir Stafford said, went to India "at the invitation of the British government, and did not interfere in any way."

WOULD AID NAZIS

Report That Gen. Franco Can Supply Large Army

Madrid.—Foreign Minister Ramon Serrano Suner said that Gen. Franco had declared that if Germany were unable to hold "the tremendous Russian danger," Spain would aid the Nazis "not with 15,000, but 1,000,000 men."

His interview with a Danish newspaperman as published in the press here also quoted him as saying that "the lives of many of our comrades that Spain needed for her resurrection remain frozen in Russia."

The Spanish minister hailed Pierre Laval, the new chief of government in Vichy, as a "good Frenchman."

KING OF DENMARK ILL

London.—The Berlin radio said King Christian, of Denmark, is suffering from heart trouble and has been advised to take a rest. The King is 71 years old.

PREPARE FOR TROUBLE

Lisbon.—A contingent of Portuguese troops left here to reinforce already increased garrison forces in the Cape Verde islands.

REIGN OF TERROR

Conditions On Island Of Madagascar Under Vichy Rule

London.—Madagascar, the strategic French island lying almost in the Allies' vital Cape route to the Indian ocean ports and the Middle East, was reported to be undergoing a reign of terror in the enforcement of new Vichy orders to imprison Free French sympathizers.

A despatch to the Daily Express from Tananarive reported orders from Pierre Laval, Vichy's new "chief of government," led to terroristic practices in the island.

The Express's correspondent said since the Japanese had broken into the Indian ocean hundreds of Free Frenchmen had been arrested by Vichy police under Gestapo orders and they were trying to round up the rest. Officials expressing antipathy to Japan or Germany are immediately dismissed, the correspondent said, declaring the governor-general's secretary was among those thrown in jail.

Declaring the great island is a prize for the first comer to take, the correspondent said: "Madagascar is not being defended against Japanese infiltration and it can not be defended against Japanese invasion."

A Reuters despatch from Port Louis on (British) Mauritius, east of Madagascar in the Indian ocean, reported anti-British broadcasts were coming from the French island daily.

Governor-General Armand Annet, 53-year-old Parisian who formerly ruled Dahomey on the west side of Africa, was reported to be arresting Free Frenchmen.

MODEL PLANES

Air Cadets Asked To Produce Them For Training Schools

Ottawa.—George B. Foster, president of the Air Cadet League, said that Canada's air cadets have been asked to produce a vast armada of scale-model warplanes as a contribution to the war effort. The models will be used in R.C.A.F. training schools during courses in gunnery and aircraft recognition. Hundreds of wooden copies of fighter and bomber aircraft are required, Mr. Foster said.

Stationed in New York, these three members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps took advantage of the weather to join a parade in Manhattan. They are Staff Sergeants Margaret Jeal, Barbara Crosby and Alexa Swam, strutting down the street, after attending service at St. Bartholomew's church.

British Ambassador And Roosevelt Discuss War In Pacific

Representatives of the two largest powers of the new Pacific War Council of United Nations, Viscount Halifax and President Roosevelt, met briefly in the White House before the council convenes. Canada has been named as a member of the war council and was represented by Hume Wrong at the initial sessions.

COMMANDS LAND FORCES

Serving under General MacArthur, General Sir Thomas Blamey will command the United Nations' land forces in Australia.

MORE TROOPS

Nazis Said To Be Sending Reinforcements Into France

London.—A division of German parachute troops has been sent to occupied France to reinforce the garrison there, the Daily Express military correspondent Morely Richards wrote, adding there were unconfirmed reports that Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt's forces in France and the Low Countries would be reinforced with from 10 to 15 divisions. Von Rundstedt's strength thus would be raised to about 1,000,000 men, Richards said.

Pointing out that these might be "enemy-inspired rumors," Richards said it nevertheless was "definite that units of airborne troops have turned up in occupied France and that there is evidence of troop movements westward across Germany."

CALLS FOR HOLY WAR

New York.—The prime minister of Punjab in India "has called for a holy war against Japan," and pictures of Adolf Hitler and Premier Tojo were burned in Bombay during anti-Axis demonstrations, the BBC said in a German-language broadcast heard by the CBS.

DENIED TO AXIS

Latin America Now Supplying Raw Materials To United Nations

Rio De Janeiro.—Latin America, a rich storehouse of raw materials, today is pouring a stream of strategic minerals and agricultural products into the arsenals of the United Nations.

The Axis, which once drew heavily upon these resources, now is cut off, while the United States and its allies, by control of the sea and wartime trade agreements, enjoy a monopoly of all the rubber, tin, manganese, mica, chrome, tungsten, copper, diamonds and lead that these countries can produce.

Item for item, many of these products match the supplies lost in Malaya, the Netherlands East Indies, the Philippines and other areas held by the Axis. In a long war they may well supply the extra sinews needed to win.

European Food Situation Said To Be Serious

Washington.—The United States agriculture department, in a summary of recent cables on European food developments, told of increasing difficulties confronting Germany and Nazi occupied countries in producing and supplying their people with food and fibre crops.

Unoccupied France is said to be facing big breadless weeks before the new wheat harvest because of diversion of grain by the black markets. Illegal use of wheat for feeding livestock and poultry, counterfeit ration cards, and failure of farmers to deliver the quantities expected.

The department said reports coming out of Germany indicate stringent measures are being taken against violators of food-rationing regulations.

Recent restrictions upon the milling of wheat and rye indicate, the department said, that German grain stocks have declined to a level where economies must be effected in order to ensure against a poor crop at home this year and the possibility of supplies from southeastern Europe falling below expectations.

Agricultural production in Denmark, less than half of normal in 1941, is said to be seriously threatened this year by the late spring shortages of fertilizers, seed and labor.

The department said Germany hoped to obtain the production of sufficient food in occupied Ukrainian Russia to meet the needs of Nazi occupation forces and for the bare maintenance of the local population. "Reports indicate," the department said, "that spring sowing in the Ukraine is no easy task owing to the shortage of machinery and horses, and or destroyed by the Russians. Despite repairs and resumed production of some farm implements spring work must be chiefly manual. It is impossible to till the land thoroughly owing to insufficient plows."

TO STUDY PLAN

Ottawa.—Royal Canadian Air Force headquarters announced a party of officers from the United States Army and Navy air services is coming to Canada to study operation of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan in preparation for the proposed Allied air conference here sometime in May.

Granting Leave For Farm Work To Be Restricted

Ottawa.—No wholesale leaves can be granted soldiers for seeding or other farm operations, Defence Minister Ralston told the House of Commons.

He was replying to questions from G. H. Castleden (O.C.F., Toronto) during consideration of the war appropriation bill in committee.

Col. Ralston said he was responsible for the training and operation of the army and time was going fast. Some people said the army was not moving fast enough.

Individual cases of hardship may be taken up with regional war services boards and the district officers commanding are required to take the recommendations of these boards in granting leave to farmers. He believed serious cases are being attended to.

Col. Ralston said "I feel my responsibilities as minister of national defence will not permit me to give any wholesale release of men who have been trained or are being trained for an operation role, even for seeding operations."

To release men from training centres at various stages in their four months' course disorganized training and meant that full use could not be made of training facilities.

There are a few units, such as depots, from which farm leaves can be granted. These have been listed and sent to March 1 of this year and about 7,000 so far this month.

George White (Con., Hastings-Peterborough) said Prime Minister Mackenzie King indicated last March that farmers would be permitted to return to the land.

Col. Ralston said Mr. King had said nothing about giving farm leave to men in the army. He had announced that henceforward men engaged in agriculture as of March 23 last would not be called up if it could be shown they are essential agricultural workers.

Reverting to recruiting figures Col. Ralston said enlistments in the army alone since January 1 date total 25,746. His advice was that if enlistments continued at that rate they would meet the present and prospective needs of the army.

Col. Ralston told the house that possession of "drugs" or political influence is not necessary to obtain promotion in Canadian forces.

Personal selection forces are active throughout 60 training stations and district depots, the minister said, seeking men for appointment to positions for which they are fitted, and making recommendations.

Applications through commanding officers for transfer to services or branches of services for which recruits believe themselves best fitted, were facilitated, Col. Ralston said.

But, although it was claimed in almost every activity, military and civilian, that "drugs" was necessary in order to get advancement, Col. Ralston said he believed "the army is about as free of that as any organization."

STUBBLE BURNING

Researches by Ducks Unlimited (Canada) show that destruction of waterfowl nests by stubble burning in spring averages one nest to three acres in good duck breeding areas; to say nothing of the loss of nests of meadowlarks, prairie chicken, Hungarian partridge and other ground nesting birds.

This great destruction can be avoided if stubble burning is done before April 15th, as few birds have started to nest by that date.

Early burning will prevent birds from nesting in stubble fields and thus save the nests from destruction by farm operations.

A countryside effort through Ducks Unlimited's more than 5,000 key-men, the western weekly newspapers and western radio stations is under way to eliminate this great loss to wild life.

All friends of wild life are asked to co-operate. More birds means fewer insects and less crop loss—thus contributing to the national war effort. Men and wild life can thrive together.

THOSE 7,500 MILES

Broadly speaking, it is good news that the average tire on a civilian automobile is good for another 7,500 miles. It will not, however, prove notably helpful to the individual whose tread is smooth, or the others whose fabric is peeping through, or the few who literally are running on the rims.

Moreover—and this is the meat in the coconut—the estimated average won't help those optimists who intend to drive as usual, convinced that God will provide when their casing and inner tubes collapse. You can take the appropriations for synthetic production, the experiments with gayule and the stories about available South American wild rubber, put them all into a cement box and sink them in the deepest available water, so far as normal civilian tire supplies are concerned. This is a bitter war, and in you have that 7,500-mile average of use left in your tires, you'd better husband it as you die your virtue.—Ex.

THE MOUNTAINS OF CANADA, THE LAND WE'RE FIGHTING FOR

Canada is a vast checkerboard of contrasts—heat and cold, wet and dry, farmland and forest, prairie and mountain, cattle ranch and factory. These are the things which make our rugged Canadian scene, and impart their vigor to our sturdy people. And there are contrasts within contrasts—even our mountain ranges differ. The mighty Rockies, born in one of mother earth's cataclysmic labor pains eons ago, rear their awe-inspiring and jagged peaks along our western coast. Into the clouds they reach, high into the land of perpetual snow, where grinding glaciers spew forth the milky water which forms the headwaters of rushing rivers. In contrast, the lowly sprawling Laurentians raise rounded heads above the green St. Lawrence watershed. "Contemptuous hills" to the Alpine climber, but "the mountains" to those who have learned to love their thick carpet of forest and fern-like lakes nesting in the valleys between the modest ranges. Contrast, then, is the key of Howard Smith's calendar, a copy of which was received last week by The Enterprise. For several years they have taken their reproductions from famous Canadian paintings or color prints in tribute to the artists who have so ably portrayed our country; but this time, instead of the brush and palette, they paint with the color corrected lens of a miniature camera guided by the photographic genius of Canadian-born Max Sauer, who is presently living and working in Montreal.

Max Sauer has steadily improved his technique during the past ten years. From still life, through fashions and on up to industrial exteriors and Kodachrome transparencies, Sauer's work exhibits extreme clarity, full tone values, and masterful composition. . . . these are our mountains in our Canada. Let us make sure we keep them.

Whiz: "Well, I have observed that some of the ladies who are most successful at bridge have husbands who are out a good deal at night."

"And her husband has a prosperous business, I suppose?"

"Oh, yes, he is taking in a lot of money. Only last night he told me a receiver was to be appointed to assist him."

Jerry: "It says here in the paper that in Egypt women carry baskets of fruit and flowers on their heads."

The husband, answering the phone, said: "I don't know. Call the weather bureau," and hung up.

"Who was that?" asked the wife.

"Some sailor, I guess. He asked if the coast was clear."

"Sir, may I have your daughter for my wife?"

"Well, bring your wife around and we'll see."

TOKYO VIA ALASKA

On paper the 1,200-mile road now being blasted through wilderness to Alaska, stops at Fairbanks, but to the American soldiers doing the job it points straight at the heart of Tokyo—they've put up road signs to prove it. Here a U.S. Army jeep is shown during a brief halt in camp beside one of the Tokyo signs. Two regiments of men were sent in by rail to Dawson Creek with tons of heavy road-building equipment. Now they've beaten the thaw into Fort Nelson and are ready to tackle the U.S. Army's biggest job to date on this continent.

YOUR SCRAP RUBBER

is now a vital war material

Enemy action in the Far East has caused such an acute shortage of rubber that our whole war effort is in serious danger. Canada and her Allies must have rubber, quickly, for the armed forces, for factories, for ships. The Japanese control our source of crude rubber imports—the only other quickly available supply is old scrap rubber, which can be reclaimed. Every citizen in Canada must do his part in collecting all the scrap rubber in the country and turning it over to the Government for war purposes. Here is how to do it.

THIS IS AN URGENT APPEAL FOR YOUR HELP

Question: Is the rubber situation really serious?

Answer: The shortage of rubber is so grave that any citizen hoarding rubber or using it unnecessarily is committing an act of disloyalty. It is now illegal to destroy any rubber article.

Question: Of what use is reclaimed rubber?

Answer: Old rubber is processed so that the rubber content is reclaimed. This reclaimed rubber is used in the manufacture of essential articles for our war effort, thus replacing crude rubber.

Question: How much scrap rubber is needed?

Answer: Fifty Million Pounds. This is a large quantity, but it MUST be found. Every old piece of rubber in Canada, no matter how small, is needed, QUICKLY.

Question: Should I turn in any usable rubber articles as well as worn out ones?

Answer: Absolutely not! By no means discard anything that is still useful and that might have to be replaced. On the other hand, rubber tires used as boat bumpers, swings, etc., should be turned in for war uses.

Question: What kind of scrap rubber is needed?

Answer: Every all-rubber or part-rubber article must be salvaged. Here are a few of the articles you must turn in:

Old Tires of every kind
Old Inner Tubes
Rubber Boots, Hats, Coats, Aprons, Pants, Gloves, Tubing, Mattings, Toys
Sport Shoes (crepe soles are especially good)
Garden Hose, Hot Water Bottles, Stair Treads, Bathing Caps and many other articles

Question: What happens to the scrap rubber collected?

Answer: The scrap is sorted, baled and assembled into carload lots and is then purchased by the Government at fixed prices throughout Canada. The Government pays forwarding transportation charges on these carload lots, and is responsible for their allocation. You may be sure that every pound will be used directly or indirectly in the war effort.

Question: How do I go about saving scrap rubber?

Answer: Start hunting for it TODAY. Clean out your cellars, attics, garages and sheds right away. You will find more rubber articles than you expect. Start them all on their way to the battlefield.

HOW DO I TURN IN MY SCRAP RUBBER?

The school boys and girls of Canada are being organized, through the school authorities, to act as Official Collectors of Scrap Rubber. The school nearest you is, therefore, your best Collection Depot. You may dispose of your scrap rubber in any one of the following four ways:

1. Give it to the children for their school collection.
2. Give it to your local National Salvage Committee.
3. Leave it with any Service Station or Tire Dealer where you see the sign, "Voluntary Scrap Rubber Receiving Depot."
4. Sell it to a junk collector.

When you gather up your scrap rubber and dispose of it by one of these methods, it will be used by the Government for Canada's War Effort. Do it NOW!

"THE HOARDER"

PUBLIC ENEMY NO. 1

People who buy more of anything than they currently need, and merchants who encourage them to do so, are sabotaging the war effort and are therefore public enemies.

Loyal citizens do not hoard. They buy only for their immediate needs. They cheerfully adjust their standard of living, realizing that their country's needs must come first. They do not try to gain unfair advantages over their neighbours.

Are you a hoarder or a loyal citizen? Are you hampering Canada's war effort by unnecessary buying? Or are you co-operating to the best of your ability to save Canada from such horrors as Hong Kong?

If Canadians do their duty, there will be no more hoarding. Everyone will get a fair share of the goods available. More food can be sent to Great Britain. More raw materials — more manpower — will be available for making guns, tanks, planes and other armaments to back up our armed forces.

In cases where it is advisable for you to buy in advance of your immediate requirements — such as your next season's coal supply — you will be encouraged to do so by direct statement from responsible officials.

HISTORIC PAPER FOUND

During a hunt for waste paper in the diocesan registry at Peterborough, Eng., the original Patent of Henry VIII, "establishing the Bishopric and Cathedral of Peterborough," dated Sept. 4, 1541, were found.

Trained Men

Committee Find That Britain Is Still Wasting Skilled Soldiers

Britain is still wasting her skilled men who have been conscripted into active service, according to the Committee on Skilled Men in the Services. The committee was set up some months ago in London under Sir William Beveridge for the purpose of finding if engineers and other technicians were being used to maximum capacity.

The navy and the air force, according to their findings, attempt to use their trained men, but the army completely fails to use men according to their skill.

More than 400 skilled workers, now in services were interviewed. Only half of them were using the knowledge that long years of civilian training had given them. The fewest mistakes, however, came from the navy.

In the air force, it was discovered that men were used for flying duties, regardless of their technical qualifications. The R.A.F. felt that a man capable of flying was more useful in the air than doing the work of a skilled craftsman.

However, the army has already released 50,000 men for industry and arrangements are being made to make better use of 40,000 more now in khaki.

But instead of the boilers blowing off their steam into the air when work stops, the steam is generated into the accumulators and stored, to be used to start up the plant again when the raiders have passed.

More than a thousand of these accumulators have now been installed in iron and steel works, sugar refineries, breweries, dairies, dyeworks and laundries. All act on the same principle—the storage of energy during off-peakload periods, and the calling into action of this steam when production requires it.

British Factories Store It For Use After A Raid

Many thousands of tons of fuel have been saved in Britain's war factories by storing steam in accumulators during air raids. Although factories do not shut down merely on getting the "alert", they have to do so when the red spotlights signal that the raiders are overhead.

But instead of the boilers blowing off their steam into the air when work stops, the steam is generated into the accumulators and stored, to be used to start up the plant again when the raiders have passed.

More than a thousand of these accumulators have now been installed in iron and steel works, sugar refineries, breweries, dairies, dyeworks and laundries. All act on the same principle—the storage of energy during off-peakload periods, and the calling into action of this steam when production requires it.

Scrap Rubber Hunt Is Now On Throughout Canada

Supplies Controller Williamson called on each business concern in Canada to appoint an "aggressive, responsible person" who will organize a scrap rubber hunt.

"While Canada's armed forces and war industries are crying for more and more rubber, hundreds of thousands of pounds are going to waste in the factories and offices of this country," Mr. Williamson said in a statement.

"The scrap rubber which finds its way into the hands of the national salvage committee of the junk collector will be used in the war effort. The government is buying the scrap rubber and is undertaking to see that it is channelled into essential war uses."

In Defence Of Britain

New Impetus To Cadets In Britain To Take Up Arms

Boys of 14 may in future stand shoulder to shoulder with their fathers—even their grandfathers—in the defence of Britain.

This opportunity has arisen from the linking up of Britain's National Cadet Association with the Home Guard. The Cadet Association was organized in 1931 to correlate the activities of secondary school cadet corps, but its scope has been widened to include corps formed by such organizations as boys' clubs.

Boys of every section of the community now have the opportunity to become cadets, and a new impetus has been given them by the decision to affiliate their units to the local Home Guards.

SUNDAY: THE DAY OF ACCLAM

Golden text: Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord. Mark 11:9.

Lesson: Mark 11:1-11; Luke 19:41-44.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 40:1-11.

Explanations and Comments

Preparing for the Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem, Mark 11:1-8. As Jesus and his disciples came near the villages of Bethphage and Bethany on the Mount of Olives, he had two of them go to the village opposite and there they would find a colt tied in the street, one that had never been ridden, which they were to bring back with them. In case anyone objected they had only to say that the Lord had need of him. That may have been the password which Jesus had agreed upon with the owners. It all happened in just that way—the colt was found.

The triumphal entry was deliberately planned. It was Jesus' last appeal to the people to accept Him as the kind of King he was, though not the kind of King they wanted—a spiritual, not an earthly ruler.

By choosing an ass (Mt. 21:2, 5) to ride upon, Jesus plainly showed the people that he was not to be thought of as a military leader, for the horse was the animal used in warfare; the ass was the fitting animal for the Prince of Peace.

The King's Royal Progress, Mark 11:9, 10. As they went down the Mount of Olives toward the city, the joyous crowd cried "Hosanna; Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord; Blessed is the Kingdom that cometh, the Kingdom of our father David; Hosanna in the highest." Compare Isa. 62:11; Zech. 9:9; Ps. 118:26. Jesus neither encouraged nor restrained the excitement.

Mark does not tell us what happened in Jerusalem. From the other Gospels we learn how all the excitement ended, how the crowd who without the walls had acclaimed Jesus as king, within the walls said half-heartedly: "This is the prophet, Jesus of Nazareth."

Weeping Over Jerusalem, Luke 19:41-44. Where the road from Bethany bends round the southern shoulder of Olivet, the city of Jerusalem suddenly comes into full view. It is a beautiful sight. As Jesus reached this point and gazed upon its massive walls and towers, its great temple so recently rebuilt by Herod, shining in its glory of marble and gold, his prophetic soul realized that the city greatness and glory were departing, and he was moved to tears. How great to him was the contrast between the ideal and the real Zion, "the city of God in the mountains of his holiness, the joy of the whole world," had become a city of formalists, of hypocrites who oppressed the poor and rejected righteousness.

Health
LEAGUE OF CANADA presents TOPICS OF VITAL INTEREST
VITAMIN "B" CONTENT OF BREAD

The diet of Canadians leaves room for improvement. How to get Canadians to increase their daily ration of Vitamin B is the problem worrying Dr. L. H. Newman, Dominion Cerealists. In the current issue of Health, official publication of the Health League of Canada, Dr. Newman gives details of how he and his associates have been working on this problem at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, Ontario.

"Since the wheat kernel is naturally rich in the Vitamin B complex," writes Dr. Newman, "and since the products of wheat flour constitute the most commonly used food of the people, nutritionists conclude that the simplest and probably the most economical and effective means of increasing our daily intake of these vitamins is through the medium of bread."

Dr. Newman explains that it is thiamin or Vitamin B1 which is particularly lacking in our ordinary diet, especially if white bread is used. Whole wheat bread contains approximately as much Vitamin B1 as does whole wheat flour—around 650 international units per pound. But white bread, which is commonly used has no more than from 90 to 100 international units per pound.

According to Dr. Newman, the B content of white bread may be increased in any of three main ways:

- (a) The use of high potency yeast.
- (b) The addition of synthetic B1 to the thiamin.
- (c) The use of flour in which more of the B1 has been retained by a process of milling.

Dr. Newman states that in Great Britain the Food Ministry has decreed that a specified amount of Vitamin B1 must be added to every sack of flour used for white bread. And in the United States, not only this important "nerve tonic," but other nutritive elements are recommended to be added to the flour.

Canadian medical authorities however, are not in favor of the addition of synthetics. Dr. Newman explains, so that the problem his department is working on is that of having Canadian wheat milled so that more of the B1 content of the wheat berry is retained in the flour.

CHAPTER XIX

As Ransome drove away back into Tahlanaka, he tried to think upon the problem at the calmly and analytically. What was the first step to carry out?

He determined to talk with Knox Randolph as soon as possible. Knox would be at the mine until 5:30. Ransome didn't like to call at the office. The telephone call might be overheard, so he could make an appointment for tonight only after Mr. Randolph had returned to Shadwell.

Ransome glanced at his watch. It was after 4. The bank would already be closed and he would have to let himself in at the side door. He drove into the town.

Affection for Tahlanaka swept over him. What a town! he told himself; the only one in the world of its kind. Sleepy little place in the heart of the noontime, still slumbering peacefully in the late afternoon. He had passed fields of cotton and tobacco which were filled with activity. Activity which rolled the money into his father's bank's tills. A breeze had blown up unexpectedly as he neared the square, and the old trees around the courthouse swayed gossamerly toward one another.

Ransome parked his car in its accustomed place and found that the conveyance next to his was the familiar old spring wagon that belonged to Fatten. Two cars down he saw the limousine that belonged to Major Towne.

It was the Major's car that he passed on the highway. Ransome told himself, but he didn't want to know it.

Why would the Major's car be turned in the direction toward the old mill on Whiffle Creek, even though it was still on the highway when they passed it? Ransome walked up to the side door of the bank and let himself in with his pass key. It certainly was an odd time to be getting back to his office. Miss Edie had probably given him up and finished the letters herself.

Ransome guiltily poked his head in at his office. Miss Edie was faithfully pounding away at her typewriter. "Oh!" she started. "Oh, Mr. Ransome, your father has been trying to reach you. The directors' meeting—did you forget it?"

Ransome looked like a little boy who had been severely reprimanded—at least he knew he just barely managed to assume that expression. "Honestly, I was so busy that it left my mind completely. But then, they didn't miss me I'm sure. Old Paddy Walsat managed without me, and was glad of the chance, I'll bet!"

Miss Edie, muffled her giggle, though. "Oh, Mr. Ransome! You do say the funniest things. Mr. Forbes insisted that I sit in on the meeting, and every time he said anything that was opposite to your principle, he glared at me, and twice he said, 'Did you take that down, Miss Edie?' I feel as though I've been through a—wringer."

"I'm sorry, Miss Edie, to let you take the punishment without me. But I'll bet it was pleasant, than if I'd been there. Let's see what Mr. Ransome had to say about the Georgia First National's business."

Miss Edie thought afterward that she had never seen Mr. Ransome so mad. If old Mr. Forbes would take his white whiskers and his beetling brows to Miami for the winter, Ransome shouted toward the end of their hour, the bank would do a lot more business this year.

"Oh, but Mr. Ransome, he intends to stay right here on the job. He said so. Very emphatically."

"Emphatically? He would. Has he ever said anything that wasn't emphatic?"

"Well—no. Although I thought his a little reluctant to lend the money for the amalgamation mill at the Cricket Mill."

The words brought back to Ransome vividly that he must get in touch with Knox Randolph at once. He called the bank's number, and was glad that Knox answered. Ransome didn't want to go to Shadwell to-night—and run into Christopher Sande, so he asked Mr. Randolph to come to his home, Stafford.

Miss Edie had gone back into her little office, and was now pinning on her sailor hat. Ransome with his keen eye for detail saw how it became her.

"Good night, Miss Edie. I'm sorry that you had an unpleasant day."

How could he tell him that? It really wasn't an unpleasant day—not any day when she could have a few minutes with Dr. Forrester. Miss Edie let herself out the door and walked sedately past the library. One of those architectural temples built by Mr. Carnegie.

The white columned building sheltered the one person in the world who dominated Miss Edie's dislike. She was the woman who had kept Edie from marrying Dr. Forrester. Florrie Patterson had been an unusually pretty girl. Too pretty for her own good, in those days, Miss Edie told herself. She had come back from the Seminary and buried herself at Dendard Forrester, who had just started his practice.

Miss Edie, with dignity, had given young Dr. Forrester back his ring after a year of agonizing suspense. She didn't want to marry a man who couldn't seem to make up his mind.

The next 10 years of their lives were those of team to a fine thread of disillusionment. For Florrie really loved Dr. Forrester by this time, and he was hopelessly in love with Miss Edie, who scorned him, although she wept her heart out for him.

Miss Florrie became the head librarian; Miss Edie, the secretary for Ransome Todd's father and later for Ransome; and Dr. Forrester remained a bachelor to whom every one carried his ills, both physical and mental.

Miss Edie always held her head a trifle higher; her heart in abeyance, as she walked stately past Mr. Carnegie's shrine. Tonight she heard Florrie Patterson's voice just inside the door, speaking to one of her assistants. "Now, Rosalie, if you can't remember to file these correctly in the index, I'll have to let you go—"

Miss Edie relaxed a little and strolled down the shady side of the street to her room at the Inn. Above all she had craved privacy. Just as she turned the corner, she heard the gate slam at the white cottage that Dendard Forrester occupied.

"Edwin," his voice reached her ears masterfully. "I need you. Get in the car without any back talk. You're going with me out to Shadwell."

Miss Edie's steps stopped in horrified surprise. "Mrs. Randolph? Oh, Dendard!" Her voice was a sob. "Knox just called. I'm afraid I'll be too late." He opened his car door and seated her quickly.

It was the fastest ride that Miss Edie had ever experienced. She watched the speedometer arrow mount in fascination. Guiltily, she wished that they could go on and on together.

They went over the last hill and Dr. Forrester slowed down the car to make the turn into the lane up to the big white house. The flock of guineas which ever seemed to haunt that lane fled in wild confusion, then stood clacking as though to prove their indifference.

Miss Edie's heart was beating slowly and painfully. She glanced at Dendard's face. It was etched with the lines of suffering that she knew he had been silently enduring.

As he stopped the car Miss Edie put her hand on his. She said nothing. He reached over and clasped it for a second with his other.

They hurried into the house. Down the kitchen hall they caught the muffled sobs of some one, and Dendard Forrester guessed that they came from Aristotle. The whole place was silently waiting as though time were suspended.

Miss Edie and the doctor climbed the stairs softly.

Phoebe came shuffling brokenly from a nearby bedroom, her kinky head bowed with grief.

Miss Edie stood outside Maria's room while the doctor turned the knob of the door. It seemed that in that one small gesture lay a life-time of devotion and love beset by dread and helplessness.

Phoebe shook her head while the tears streamed. "It won't be long, Miss Edie. Ah knows."

Like a mother hen startled out of her customary calm, Miss Edie went back down to the telephone. She had some one on the line at Stafford. Ransome had not arrived yet.

She called his office number, trembling so that her voice shook. Ransome's voice sounded impatient. She could picture him with his hat on, ready to leave.

"Ransome, this is Miss Edie."

She could hear the startled sound of his exclamation, "Yes?"

"Ransome, I don't want to upset you." She had never called Ransome Todd in all of the years that she had worked for him or his father. "I thought you'd like to know things. Mrs. Randolph is not so well. I'm at Shadwell with Dr. Forrester."

Ransome's hoarse voice rasped: "I'll be there in 10 minutes."

Miss Edie crept up the stairs once more. She must find Tanner at once. A wild thought assailed her. Perhaps they were wrong. Dendard Forrester could perform miracles. Miss Edie prayed silently, let him help Maria. Please, let him help Maria. (To Be Continued)

Gardening

Window Boxes

Flowers in window boxes or hanging pots represent the most highly intensive sort of gardening. This means that very rich soil should be used and, in addition, a fairly frequent application of chemical fertilizer during the season. Being exposed on all sides to drying winds, a thorough watering once a day of the window box is advised.

The box or pot must have holes in the bottom to provide drainage, and also a layer of gravel, cinders, broken crockery or similar material for the same purpose.

Along the front of window boxes are planted trailing Nasturtiums, German Ivy, Lobelia, Alyssum and similar plants with Petunias, Ageratums, Begonias, Ferns, Geraniums and other plants, especially recommended for this purpose farther back. Shelter from the sun for a day or two should be provided until the plants get established.

Leaves Wet Soil Alone

Nothing is to be gained from working soil before it is rainy. In fact, with heavy ground, according to garden authorities, too early digging is about the worst possible thing one can do. Not only is it a messy job, in the first place, but the sticky clay is quite likely to bake later into hard lumps, adding perhaps for temporary building material, but not for growing flowers and vegetables.

One should curb the natural impulse to be out digging in early spring and wait until the surface water has completely disappeared and one can walk and work in the garden without getting the shoes muddy. When the soil reaches this stage it is fit to work, and not before. Good garden soil is the right working condition crumbles and breaks into fine, tiny pieces, it does not pack into lumps.

One can hardly over-emphasize the importance of early cultivation, once of course the soil is fit to work. A little digging in the garden then is worth a whole burst of feverish energy later on. At this time when the soil is moist, it is a simple matter to get out twitches and other weeds, to stir the ground deeply. By doing so, the weeds, grasses, and other plants and flowers and conserve moisture and plant food. If this essential job is neglected for a few days, then weeds have developed tougher roots and are hard to remove and much valuable moisture is lost. In the dryer sections of Canada, frequent cultivation is depended upon to conserve the scant rainfall and it will keep vegetables growing steadily which they must do if they are to be tender.
